A story born in the Northeast, between vineyards and warehouses

The UrbiAAco radiator was created to combine two traditional Made in Italy products, marble and wine, enhancing and dignifying the by products of their manufacturing products.

Here, the colors of wine embrace the avors of nature, offering a surface where the scent of must is combined with the fragrance of freshly baked bread, reconciling us with nature and our memories.

A product born from a long phase of experimentation to find the sacred Grail of the magic formula; the process necessarily involved attempts and numerous discussions with the friends from the local wineries who visit the MAARMO atelier, helping us find the correct sequence for the aging process in old barriques and the most suitable by-products to achieve the desired coloration and ensure the balanced release of a fruity aroma.

After 18 months, here are finally the first models of the UbriAAco radiator, designed to warm and fragrance homes in a natural way with a unique and unmistakable style.

The process

A radiator tinged with the hues of the vine, which, once turned on, releases the fragrance of ancient cellars where the flavors of must have layered over time with the history of humankind and nature.

In its various stages, the UbriAAco radiator takes shape not only as an ecological element for heating spaces, but as a true ambassador of art, tradition, and human warmth

_1 Radiators e barrique
While master artisans work with dedication and skill to create Maarmo radiators, the old barrels guard the secret of red wine aging. It is in this union between the birth of our product and the slow maturing of the wine that an unbreakable bond is formed between the warmth of wood and the enveloping avors of the vine.

_2 Immersion in the barrique sediments
Once the body of the radiator is forged, it's time to give it a soul. Gently and respectfully immersed in the sediments that settle in the barriques, our product slowly absorbs the very essence of time and winemaking tradition. It is here that the UbriAAco radiator becomes infused with memory and experience, ready to pass on these precious gifts to the spaces it will inhabit.

_3 A fusion of color and scent
A treatment that gives the UbriAAco radiator a unique and unmistakable identity. Its surface takes on a winered hue, enriched with delicate tonal variations. Once switched on, the warmth it releases unveils an enveloping aroma—a song of grape pomace released into the air, transporting anyone who breathes it in on a sensory journey through the oldest cellars.
