THE LEGEND

The origins of Egeria Mineral Water are rooted in the early history of Rome.

Egeria was a Roman goodness, whose great wisdom was essential for Numa Pompilius, the second legendary king of Rome. Thanks to the advice of Egeria, the king managed to ensure peace and adopt pioneering laws. When the king died, Egeria melted into tears of sorrow, and the goddess Diana turned her tears into a spring – the Egeria Mineral Water spring.

To honor this legend and the 'miraculous' properties of the spring, ancient Romans built a Nymphaeum (2nd century AD).

OUR LOCATION

The Nymphaeum built in the proximity of the spring is the joining link between the past and the present.

Furthermore, it contributes to enrich the majestic archaeological site where the spring and the company Acqua Santa di Roma Srl are sited, together with a great number of monuments of Roman Times - as the Tomb of Caecilia Metella, the Villa of Maxentius, and the Aqueducts Park.

BETWEEN MYTH AND HISTORY

In the heart of Rome, surrounded by the greenery of the archaeological park of Appia Antica, the tears of a Roman goddess gave life to a secular local tradition that became the foundations of a recent history of family entrepreneurship.

Since 1948, the company 'Acqua Santa di Roma Srl' has represented the endeavor of the Mari's family to safeguard history, tradition and 'Made in Italy' excellence, while enhancing innovation and environmental sensitivity.

Every bottle contains not only unique organoleptic characteristics, but also a secular and distinctive history made of myths and relentless efforts.
