TANZANITE

PRECIOUS STONE

Tanzanite is a gemstone that was first discovered in 1967 in Tanzania, at the foot of mount Kilimanjaro.

It is a thousand times rarer than diamonds: it is found only in Tanzania, in an area of just 14 square kilometers.

For this stone was chosen a “chip” cut, measuring between 5 and 7 mm. Gently smoothed and then polished, still retaining some rough edges though, to evoke the wild and untamed nature that its intense color conveys.

GRANATO

PRECIOUS STONE

Garnet is the stone of courage. The name comes from the Latin 'granatum', due to its resemblance to pomegranate seeds.

The rhombus shape used by Rebecca was chosen specifically to resemble pomegranate seeds in their most recognisable form.

It has been used for centuries by emperors and warriors as a protective talisman. The Romans also used it, believing it could protect them from injury in battle.

ENSEMBLE

MIX OF PRECIOUS STONES

This mix has been created to bring together the myriad chromatic reflections that only natural stones can offer.

Peridot, Garnet, Aquamarine, Rutile, Carnelian, Amethyst and Opal follow one another in an irregular pattern, evoking the spontaneous randomness of nature.

The individual stones were cut into cubes and then polished into circular shapes of the same diameter, to create the illusion of a single path, consistent in form but unpredictable in colour.

PERIDOTO

PRECIOUS STONE

Peridot has truly extreme origins, it forms in the Earth's mantle and reaches the surface through volcanic eruptions.

The Romans appreciated its ability to shine even in the moonlight. Some peridot crystals have even been found in meteorites, linking this gemstone to both the Earth's core and outer space.

For this stone too, the 'chip' cut, angular and unpredictable, has been chosen to complement the character of its intense green colour.
