CULT I

The Rebecca brand's fashion DNA, crafted in 24-kt gold-plated bronze, draws inspiration from the timeless geometric forms of late 1920s art and architectural movement of the Bauhaus. Jewelry pieces drawn from the brand's archives are reinterpreted and updated to reflect the current zeitgeist, creating iconic pieces that can be worn with ease and style, embodying an unmistakably Rebecca aesthetic.

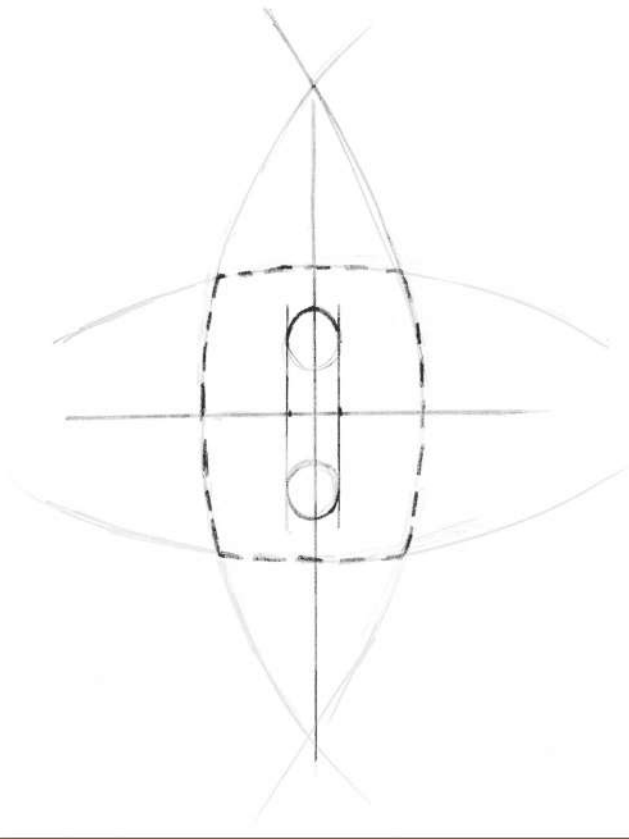

Rebecca Cult link

Two semicircles connected by two parallel tracks, in the golden ratio, that is, 2.62:1

- 2x2 mm square-section wire, laser-cut. Surface hand-brushed with abrasive wheels and then mirror-polished on the flat surface to maintain sharp edges.
- For the large version, the mesh is then sanded with coarse 80-grit sandpaper, applying heavy pressure to achieve a striped finish.

Two intersecting ellipses, the central hole features the interior of the Cult Rebecca link.

- The surface is hand-brushed and then mirror-polished on the sides to maintain sharp edges.
- The link is then sanded with coarse 80-grit sandpaper, applying heavy pressure, to achieve a striped finish.

THE STONES

The stones used in the necklaces are completely natural. They have not been dyed, coated, or heat treated.

They have been extracted, cut, polished, and drilled asymmetrically to create a “grape” effect. Each necklace contains a total of approximately 175 carats of natural gemstones.

The clasp is also asymmetrical. To keep it stable and prevent it from twisting, it features a recess for the T-bar on the front and another on the back for the connecting chain.
