The earthquake in Emilia was in particular the earthquake of the factories; the dead were mainly the workers. People who came from the south, from abroad or from the province itself. Come to work. People buried alive in the rubble of warehouses, industries, factories. The already precarious, frustrating and tiring life of four kids and a generation destroyed by an earthquake. The earthquake is inside their lives first, and destroys them later. We have always been earthquake victims, uprooted and forced to emigrate. It is a story with a very human heart, not provocative, accusatory and angry, but intimate, empathic and lucid, without patheticism.
