INTRODUCING

I'm Giorgio Badin and, together with my family, I run Ronco del Gelso, our own winery in Cormons, in the northeast of Italy. Our goal is to produce fine wines that are well-typed, ageworthy and packed with personality.

VINEYARDS

We produce wine only from grapes from 25 hectares of our vineyards.

Our vineyards are situated on the small plain created by the tributaries of the Isonzo river, which extends from the hills of the Collio region towards the Adriatic Sea.

The poor, stony, dry soils are ideal for viticulture.

CELLAR

Our recently built cellar allows us to transform our grapes into wine under our full control, from pressing to ageing, bottling and storage. In 2008 we installed two photovoltaic roofs for 50 kW and a woodchip-burning furnace so we can claim to be self-sufficient for electricity and heat.

WINES

- We produce wines which are both extremely pleasurable when first released and with an elevated aging capacity as well.
- Our oenological goal is to practice a simple oenology that is never invasive able to enhance the structure of our wines but primarily to make them fine and elegant and able to last and improve over time.
- Our vineyards are followed very carefully by hand, the production per hectare are low, in the cellar we try to exalt the finesse and elegance of the wines.

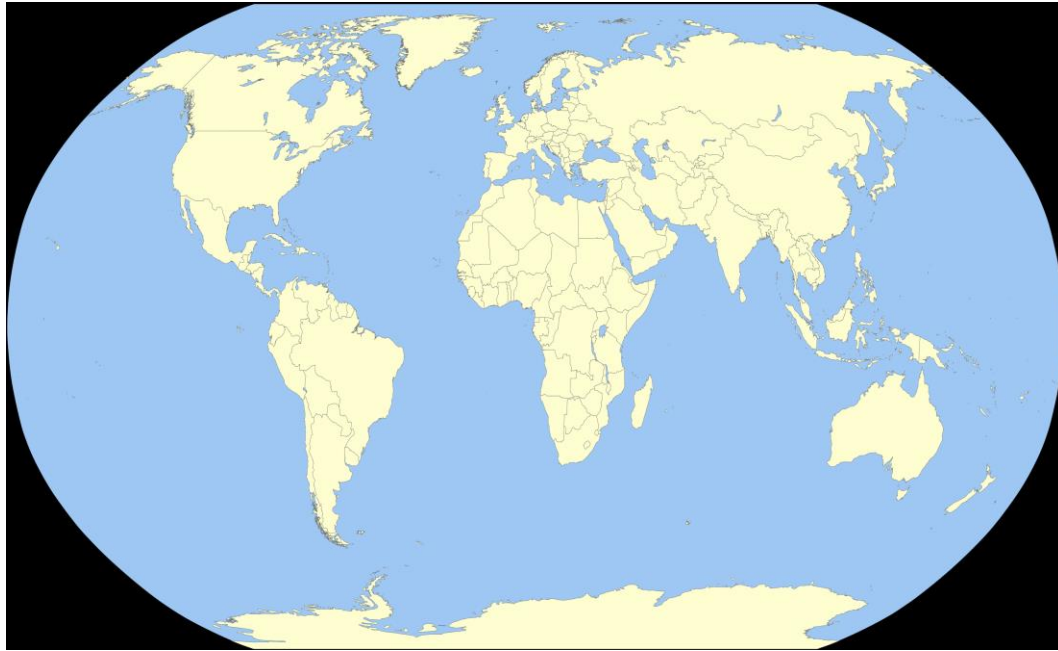

ITALIAN MARKET

- In Italy, our wines are on the wine list of over 1000 restaurants where they are known and appreciated not only for their quality but also for their excellent value for money.

EXPORT MARKET

- We export 50% of our production of n.160000 bottles/year.
- Abroad we are present in many countries around the world such as Australia, Canada, Russian, Hong Kong, USA, Mexico, Brasil and in many European countries.
- Our target is always a medium-high level.
