

Already in existence at the turn of World War II, the workshop is a central engineering reference in the province of L'Aquila. While overlooking the national scene in the mid 70's, the workshop received an important impetus, thanks to the work and professionalism of its employees and Luigi Puglielli, to create its own range of products aimed at the untapped plumbing and heating market at the time. The 80's and 90's reinforced the company's position and core values such as quality, reliability, passion, and professionalism. Today, the company serves a varied clientele, including corporations and the best private individuals. These clients vest ultimate confidence with our company and, as we make all efforts not to disappoint our clients, we are grateful for this support. Proud and strong, with more than thirty years of experience, we keep intact the values that have marked us throughout these years. Satisfying our clients was and still is our hallmark. Offering quality at competitive prices is our added value.
