About Us

Agri Parts Group, an Italian company that has been present in the market since the 70s, produces and sells spare parts that are perfectly compatible with the original equipment. Agri Parts Group manufactures components for agricultural machines such as combine harvesters, forage harvesters and tractors.

With a rigorous selection of materials and by controlling the manufacturing process in its entirety, we accurately reproduce components in line with OEM specifications, meaning that Agri Parts offers quality parts at affordable prices.

With a warehouse of over 10,000 references available from stock and a fast, reliable delivery network all across the world, Agri Parts is able to satisfy every customer's requirements.

Activity rhymes with Quality

Our primary goal is Customer satisfaction; that's why we never stop looking to improve, just like you.

We understand the market in which we operate requires reliability and quality in every single production aspect: we have gone further when considering these essential characteristics, both in our products and in our staff.

We continually focus on excellence, investing in development and research, in quality testing, and in every aspect of our company, especially with our committed and competent employees.

Our dedication and professionalism has allowed us to become a global exporter of spare parts and components for agricultural machines, continually expanding our sales network throughout Europe, and also in the United States and South America, as well as the North and South of Africa , the Middle East and in the Far East.

We have become a point of reference for the growing number of companies that have come to rely on us over the years to minimize their downtime and to supply products that stand out for their quality and durability.
