Clinically Tested

Efficacy test carried out by the University of Ferrara

Combined use of the products: Lightening Face Scrub, Lightening Serum and Lightening Cream for at least 4 weeks.

Evaluation of reducing hyperpigmentation skin induced by cosmetic products through long-term tests with instrumental evaluation

Average age: 45 years old

The subjects of a mean age of 45.50 years were subjected to experimentation; the group has not presented dermatological problems following treatment.

The trial has highlighted a significant decrease in the "color distance" allowing a reduction in the perception of the hyperpigmented area per the product under test.

Gluconolactone is a hydroxyacid also suitable for delicate and sensitive skin, it has antioxidant functions, since it reduces the damage caused by UV rays and the resulting photoageing, and also has antiageing properties because it increases the dermal production of collagen, hyaluronic acid and fibroblasts

Porphyra Umbilicalis is a red macroalgae, very important for the balance of the skin as it is rich in Omega-3, iron and vitamins. It prevents and relieves the skin ageing process as it protects the skin from UVA/UVB rays.
