PREFACE

Borsa Vini Italiani holds a prominent position in the Italian Trade Agency's calendar as the premier wine-focused event. The event will feature 54 Italian wine producers, including amari, liqueurs and spirits producers, showcasing and presenting their wines and spirits to potential buyers. Visitors will have the opportunity to explore more than 300 wines at an exclusive walk-around tasting at the Science Museum in London.

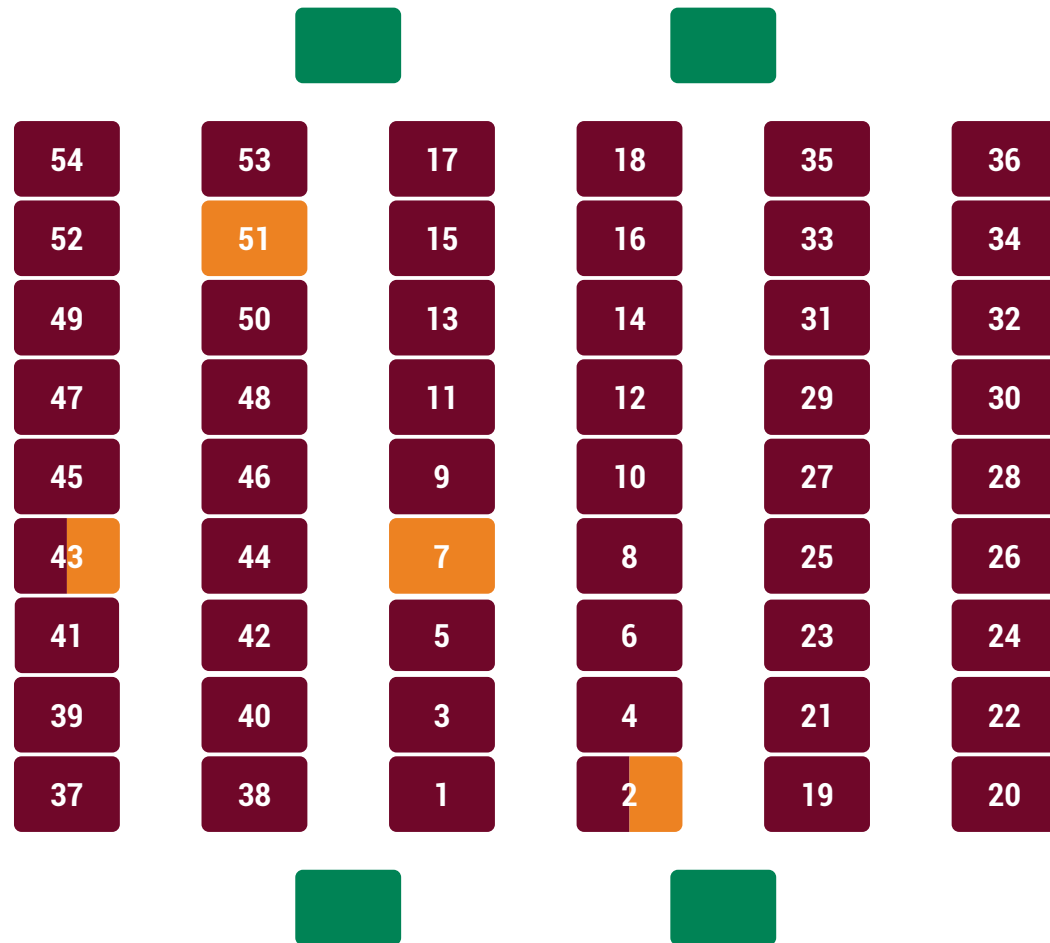

From sparkling to classic and refreshing wines, from powerful and opulent, to elegant and intense, including white, sweet, red and rosé varieties. The styles on offer represent the rich diversity found in Italy. Ranging from international grapes to indigenous ones, these wines are crafted using traditional, low-intervention, and regularly organic methods, providing a multitude of options for exploration.

The event will showcase wines from various Italian regions, including Piedmont, Lombardy, Friuli-Venezia-Giulia, Veneto, Emilia-Romagna, Tuscany, Marche, Abruzzo, Campania, Apulia, Sicily and Sardinia.

Many of the producers are actively seeking distribution within the UK market. This presents a significant opportunity for distributors, importers, and trade professionals in the UK interested in adding high-quality Italian wines to their portfolio. The presence of these Italian wine producers actively seeking distribution partnerships underscores the event's importance as a platform for connecting Italian producers with potential distribution channels in the UK.

ITA London director Giovanni Sacchi says: "The UK market is a major destination for Italian wine exports, and this year's trade figures prove this yet again with an increase of almost 14% year-on-year of the value of Italian wine exports to the UK in 2022. With an increase in the number of producers present compared with last year, taking it to 54, we are confident that this year's Borsa Vini Italiani will be fruitful in encouraging new business partnerships to strengthen and widen the presence of Italian wines in this country."

We are Venchiarezza, the organic winery located in Cividale del Friuli (Friuli-Venezia Giulia region). We are also the one of few producers of organic olive oil in this region. Our area is well known its white wine in worldwide, as from geography, the northern half is very mountainous and gives way to flatter terrain and plains on the way to the sea. The climate is distinguished with very warm days and chilly nights that help maintain a balance in the grape between acidity and sugar levels. It also helps to collect high intense aroma substance of grapes and allows the grapes a long, slow growing season. Thus, beside we are strong in white wines; our red wine is also part of our core products due to its fine quality and unique characters.

In Abruzzo fascinating region, in the estate, where his parents had implanted new vineyards, using the old vines of the XIX century, Dante Marramiero founded the Marramiero winery at the beginning of the Nineties. After him, his project of wine making, ageing and bottling has been reaped and improved by his son Enrico.

Marramiero wines are the results of that family history, where ancestral love for the land meets attention for the progress, where dedication to the agricultural work combines with art efflux, and where respect of the ancient wine making processes becomes integrated to the use of modern technologies. The company headquarters is located in the Villa Bertuzzi-Ferrari and in the adjacent buildings, surrounded by a park full of centuries-old trees. Our cooperative was founded in 2012 by the merger of two historic companies on the Modena wine scene, Emilia Romagna region.

The Carpi Winery, which was founded in 1903 and a pioneering example of Agricultural Cooperation, and the Sorbara Winery, the name that quintessentially identifies Lambrusco DOC. We are a cooperative with over 1,200 grape growers.

They include historical wineries that have become avant-garde production sites in more than a century of social and technological evolution.

Quality is what we aim for on a daily basis. The reason we welcome grapes from over 2,000 hectares of different vineyards is to select the best raw material and allocate it to our different wines. Macchie Santa Maria is a small winery in the municipality of Montemiletto, in the province of Avellino, in the heart of the land of "green Irpinia". This small town is located on a mountainous relief, the watershed between the valley of the Calore Irpino and Sabato rivers. A place with a strong winemaking tradition, due to a particularly suitable territory, which for years has been asserting itself for the quality of its native grapes. It is in this land of springs, green hills and overwhelming rivers that Oreste De Santis, taking over a business managed by the family for decades, has transformed a small production destined for very few into an expression of a territory that can be donated to a circle of enthusiasts outside the small town of Montemiletto. The cultivation of vines and the production of typical wines from Campania is an activity already practiced by the great-grandparents, but which could only be used by family members and local inhabitants. Fabrizio Dionisio Boutique Winery is located on the hills facing the town of Cortona, province of Arezzo, in southeastern Tuscany. The property extends for 15 hectares of vineyards, at an high average of 300 metres. It is a family-run winery. The total average production is 50.000 bottles. Beginning in 2000, new vineyards were gradually planted focusing exclusively on Syrah, and organic farming was adopted right from the start. We got the official organic certification (BIO) in 2021.

All operations are carried out manually, harvest included. The alcoholic fermentation is carried out in steel tanks, whereas ageing of wines takes place in steel tanks, concrete tanks, small and big wood barrels, depending on the wines.

The unique climate and soil characteristics of Cortona terroir are indeed the perfect conditions for the growth of Syrah, which gives superlative quality when cultivated with the particular attention it requires. The target of the winery is to produce a great Syrah which could compete with the best Syrahs in the world, remaining at the same time absolutely Tuscan, with an outstanding Cortona character, able to express its terroir, relying on the peculiarity, minerality and elegance that only ancient and really suited soils can give to a wine.

Tenuta Licinia sits at the foothills of the Tuscan Appenines near the village of Lucignano on the border between the province of Siena and Arezzo.

The property consists of 60 hectares of woods, 5.5 Ha of vineyards and 3Ha of Olive groves. Tenuta Licinia is a small winery that aims to bring back forgotten vineyards with exceptional subsoils into production in Tuscany. Its focus is on three points:

1. First, to identify and find the most interesting subsoils in a large radius (25km) around the winery.
2. Second, to make wines that are united with their subsoils (in the clos style)
3. Third, to make a style of wine with a fresh and more mineral/identitarian vision.

The current winemaker is James Marshall-Lockyer. Before starting at Tenuta Licinia, James had planned on an academic career and was completing his doctorate in the philosophy department at Oxford University. As James' grandfather, who had laid the foundations of the project, was ageing, James had the opportunity to take over the vineyards. James has a research interest in the nature of subsoil vine interaction and also on which properties that make one wine better than another. In relation to contemporary Tuscan winemaking the Tenuta Licinia style can be described as slightly less extracted and less heavy. The style also reflects a translational approach in that it attempts to bring out the site specific aromas in the extraction process, translating proto-sensorial compounds created from the subsoil/vine interaction into their aromatic and textural counterparts in the final wine. Like many contemporary wineries, the Licinia style also eschews heavy oaking regimes.
